A

SHORT ACCOUNT

OF

The Loganian Library.

THIS valuable collection, conſiſting principally of books in the learned languages, was begun by the late JAMES LOGAN, whoſe enlarged mind induced him to provide for extending to others the means of thoſe purſuits he had himſelf ſucceſsfully cultivated. With this view, he built a ſuitable houſe for the reception of a library; and, by deed, veſted it (with the books he had collected, and certain rents for the purpoſe of increaſing their number and ſupporting a Librarian) in Truſtees, for the uſe of the public, forever; this deed he afterwards cancelled, and prepared, but did not live to execute, another, in which ſome alteration was made in the funds and regulations. After he died, his children and reſiduary legatees conveyed the whole eſtate, intended by him, to Truſtees, who cauſed the books, amounting to more than two thouſand volumes, to be arranged in the building prepared for their reception, and a catalogue of them to be printed.

About one thouſand three hundred volumes, collected by the late Dr. WILLIAM LOGAN, of Briſtol, and WILLIAM LOGAN, of Philadelphia, have ſince been deviſed to the inſtitution, by the latter gentleman, who acted acted as Librarian. After his death, in 1776, the library remained unopened during ſeveral years, until the Legiſlature of Pennſylvania, at the requeſt of JAMES LOGAN, the only ſurviving Truſtee, paſſed the act for annexing the Loganian Library to that belonging to the Library Company of Philadelphia; which act conſtitutes the Directors of that Company, for the time being, Truſtees, together with the eldeſt male heir of the late JAMES LOGAN, and two other gentlemen, to be, by ſuch heir, appointed. Since which the houſe, built by JAMES LOGAN, has been ſold, and a handſome addition made to the Philadelphia Library for keeping the books of the Loganian Library, which was opened on the firſt of May, 1794. for the benefit of the citizens, agreeably to the intentions of the donor, and purſuant to the directions of the act of Aſſembly.

An

An Act for annexing the Loganian Library to the Library belonging to the Library Company of Philadelphia, and for other purpoſes therein mentioned.

WHEREAS James Logan, formerly of Stenton, in the county of Philadelphia, Eſquire, influenced by the patriotic deſire of extending the benefits of learning among his fellow citizens, by deed, bearing date the eighth day of March, one thouſand ſeven hundred and forty-five, conveyed to certain truſtees, therein named, a lot of ground, ſituate on the weſt ſide of Sixth-ſtreet, in the city of Philadelphia, between Cheſnut and Walnut-ſtreets, with the building thereon erected, and a large and valuable collection of books, for the uſe of the inhabitants of the city of Philadelphia; and for the ſupport of the ſaid inſtitution, by the ſame deed, he veſted in the ſaid truſtees certain rents charge therein deſcribed, and reſerved to himſelf the right of altering or cancelling the ſaid deed; and afterwards propoſing to ſettle other rents charge, and appoint other truſtees for the ſame purpoſes, he cancelled the ſaid deed, and partly prepared another, which he did not live to complete; and by his laſt will and teſtament, bearing date the twenty-fifth day of November, one thouſand ſeven hundred and forty-nine, the ſaid James Logan reſerved from his reſiduary eſtate, and deviſed the two rents charge thereafter mentioned, declaring them to be intended for the uſe of the ſaid inſtitution; and ſince his death, William Logan and James Logan, ſons of James Logan aforeſaid, John Smith and Hannah his wife, the ſaid Hannah Smith being the ſurviving daughter of James Logan, the elder, and the ſaid William Logan

Preamble.
